La Jolla Country Day School is an independent, college-preparatory institution offering K-12 education. Founded in 1926, it is accredited by the California Association of Independent Schools (CAIS) and the Western Association of Schools and Colleges (WASC), and is a member of the National Association of Independent Schools (NAIS). The school focuses on students' intellectual, moral, artistic, and physical development while fostering key values such as integrity, respect, responsibility, and compassion.

As a college-preparatory school, La Jolla Country Day emphasizes both academic achievement and social engagement, providing comprehensive support for students as they prepare for university life. The school's well-rounded education in academics, arts, and athletics encourages students to explore their passions and build a strong foundation for future success.

In recent years, La Jolla Country Day has invested over $47 million in upgrading its facilities, with plans for an additional $150 million in the near future. These upgrades include 17,000 square feet of new classrooms, cutting-edge science labs, multimedia rooms, and technology hubs, as well as professional-level art studios and sports facilities. The curriculum includes advanced arts programs in painting, sculpture, photography, and performing arts.

The school's athletic programs accommodate all skill levels, with many students excelling in regional and national competitions. La Jolla Country Day provides a balanced environment that supports academics, arts, and physical well-being.
